

21st Century Management

Take the Risk to Engage

In “21st Century Management: Take the Risk to Engage”, Coach David R Meyer (best-selling author of “The Engaged Manager”) explores the evolutionary path to becoming an Engaged Manager.

Unfortunately, new managers are rarely prepared for their roles. They struggle to give up personal control as they learn to handle the “human” side of the business.

Engaged Managers understand that management is not about them, it’s about the people around them. Therefore, being an Engaged Manager is about moving from personal results to collaborative success.

An Engaged Manager creates an Engaged Team and, therefore, produces more results for less money than non-engaged managers, helping the organization accomplish its goals.

In this thought provoking presentation, Coach David R Meyer shares engaging personal stories which not only help illustrate the evolutionary path to becoming an Engaged Manager, but also bring a warmth and “real-life” nature to this presentation.

“21st Century Management” will change the way you think about yourself and your management role.

Coach David R Meyer

Author, Speaker, Trainer, Coach, Mentor Coach

As a former telecom executive (MCI, Nextel, XO Communications), Coach David R Meyer always took great pride in his ability to identify talented people, uncover their potential strengths, and cultivate them into outstanding executives.

David witnessed how his own performance as a leader dramatically improved with an investment in personal development, and he believes that this investment has a direct impact on the bottom line; with improved performance and reduced employee turnover.

Coach David R Meyer wrote “The Engaged Manager” to share the tips and techniques that he has found to be the secret to success at all levels of management.
